Luxor has always been one of my favorite match-3 games alongside many others; mostly played during my late childhood. This version of Luxor, after almost 10 years, takes the cake. Fast paced action, amazing soundtrack, and definitely more intense than its predecessors. Not only that, but you also have bonus levels within the game. (You'll have to find out what they are yourself, though.). This looks like a game I would've made in 4th grade in Game Maker Studio.. I was unsatisfied with this product. the map making part is tedious to the extent that i couldnt get past it the eraser does not work theres no undo if you mess up. very sloppy . as for the rest ... ya gotta get yer map done first and thats gonna take the patience of a saint. oh and maybe a tutorial would be nice.. This game is a breath of fresh air. A true atmosphere horror game. Everything from the narrator to the controls trully delivers on the theme of the game. Also 5 points for not having zombies.. This game is a lot of fun and I find myself going back to replay missions to try to perfect my scores. The controls are a little wobbly and take some getting used to, but all in all it is a solid and fun game!

I rather enjoy the Farm Frenzy games, and while this one plays basically the same as the others, the graphics are clunky 3D. I wish they had stayed with the classic 2D art of the previous games. The English is incoherent in places and overall it is a poorly made game in the series.. Can you believe SquareEnix made this?! It seems like a dumb game, but it kept me interested for awhile. Gotta love the art work too.. What this game lacks in brand name studio advertising and high profile streamer support, it makes up for in competitive spirit, difficulty, and complexity--as well as top-of-the-line gun physics and breathtaking graphics. With a wide variety of guns to choose from, the meta of DeerHunterX promises to stay fresh for years to come. The Barrett provides a strong optic with laser accuracy, but the M16A4 offers a high rate of fire and larger magazine. Several other guns, including a semiautomatic shotgun, offer a well-balanced selection of loadouts for eager DeerHunters.

The AI of the titular "Deer" is beyond that of any AI in any AAA-studio game on the market, Far Cry 5 be damned. They react dynamically to your presence, requiring stealth expertise and careful positioning to kill even the slowest of deer. The constant challenge of increasing your killcount in DeerHunterX's vast and varied landscape provides hours and hours of gameplay; as you master one weapon, the Deer master it as well, learning its sound and how to escape its dangers.

The environment of DeerHunterX is amazing, to say the least. The game could be a walking simulator and I would still put hours into it. Rolling hills, dense forests, lush meadows--playing the game takes you to a world as detailed and captivating as Tolkien's Middle Earth, with the added bonus of an endless population of Deer to Hunt(X). Spend a while staring up at the sky. You won't regret it.

All in all, DeerHunterX promises to be a mainstay of Steam libraries for any serious and discerning gamer for years to come. The addition of multiplayer, if it comes, will place it in the Hall of Fame with other all-time great competitive FPS games, but until then, the in-depth and captivating open world campaign is sure to reward any gamer willing to put time and dedication into the best indie video game of the 21st century so far.. This game as a really bad issue with steam vr, it's the third time i try to play a level and it wont sto making steam vr crash, it has done it around a dozen times already. please fix the issue. I believe this game has potential after its early access. If you got friends to play with, you can play this game as it has a low cost. There should be an update on the maps like maybe more objects on the ground?
